

The Ruskin Bridge Under Construction 1928–1929

Bridge being built on 280th, then Parker Road. Albert Miller was engineer. Art McBride worked on the job.

At that time 280th Street ran straight down to 96th Avenue across this bridge.

Later the road was diverted to the east, cutting through the sports field and eliminating the need for a bridge.

